Parking lot fight leads to assault charges

ASSAULT Call it parking lot rage.

A taxi driver ended up in the hospital with a jaw injury yesterday after he blocked three men in a parked car in Timberlea.

The owner of the car and two other men got into an argument and a physical fight when the cabbie parked in front of the parked car at about 1 p.m. The taxi driver was hurt. The men then left the scene, but RCMP say the taxi driver followed them.

Police were called and caught up to the travelling rage show near downtown Halifax, said RCMP Sgt. Mark Gallagher.

"I guess about the closest thing you could describe it as is road rage. Unfortunately, things escalated," Gallagher said.

"What both parties should have done is called us, and we could have defused the thing. (Now) you've got three people who are being charged with assault."

One of the men from the parked car is facing an assault causing bodily harm charge; the other two are charged with assault. They were arrested, but will appear in court later.

The taxi driver was admitted to the hospital.

Historic landmarks face wrecking ball to make way for office space

JON TATTRE

Historic Properties landmarks O'Carroll's and Sweet Basil's dining room will be demolished, if a Halifax developer gets its way.

The Armour Group wants to raze the two Upper Water Street buildings and construct a nine-storey glass-and-steel office building. A replica facade of the O'Carroll's front would be attached to the tower, according to the Heritage Trust of Nova Scotia. Three other buildings in the central block face partial demolition.

Trust president Phil Pacey says the move would be disastrous.

"There are lots of opportunities where people can build office space without destroying heritage buildings ... they can certainly build on a vacant lot."

Phil Pacey, Heritage Trust president

"The people of HRM are strongly attached to our heritage buildings," he said yesterday. "Over and over ... (people have told us) what a waste it would be if they were lost."

His group is campaigning against the plans. Over the Natal Day weekend, they collected 683 signed postcards asking HRM council to protect the buildings. Those were presented to council last night.

"We are hopeful council will listen to the concerns expressed," Pacey said. He added the trust is not against development, but would rather see heritage buildings renovated. He cited work done on the nearby Morris Tea building and the Masonic Hall on Barrington Street as good examples.

"We would love to see additional office space downtown," Pacey said.

"There are lots of opportunities where people can build office space without destroying heritage buildings. If someone really wants brand-new space, they can certainly build on a vacant lot."

John Chaban was visiting Halifax yesterday. The Torontonian was snapping photos of the Historic Properties and said it would be a shame to destroy the buildings.

"I like them," he said. "That's why I'm here. I'd hate to come back in ten years and see them gone."

He owns a historic property in Toronto and knows the cost of maintaining them, but says it is worth it.

The Armour Group did not return calls for comment as of press time last night.

Frigate set to aid Somali food mission

JON TATTRE for Metro Halifax

AFRICA Canada is set to divert a Halifax-based frigate to fight pirates off the coast of Somalia, it was reported yesterday.

Defence Minister Peter MacKay was to make an announcement about a warship joining a UN mission yesterday, but delayed it.

HMCS Ville de Quebec is on a NATO mission in the Mediterranean and Black seas, but sources say it will now head to the horn of Africa to aid the World Food Program.

"There's certainly a risk (of pirate attack)," said Eric Lerhe, a retired commodore who is a member of Dalhousie University's Centre for Foreign Policy Studies. "These pirates are well armed, but not as well armed as the ship."

Lifeguards watch over Black Rock Beach yesterday, but swimmers were told to stay out of the water.

Short opening for beaches

JENNIFER TAPLIN and JON TATTRE

What the mayor opened, bacteria has closed.

Despite the rain on Saturday, Black Rock Beach and the Dingle Tower Beach were reopened to the public on Saturday. But by Sunday, too much rain raised concerns of high bacteria, so both beaches were closed.

Mayor Peter Kelly said too much water forces out a surge of broken-down sewage into the harbour. The solids are taken out, he explained, but more liquids — even though they're watered down — are flushed into the harbour during heavy rainfall.

The overflow caused a bacteria concern, but because it was a long weekend, city crews couldn't test the water to make sure because there were no labs open.

"We did close down the beaches so we could take some new readings to make sure the beaches are safe,"

"Things happen that you can't control."

Mayor Peter Kelly

Kelly said.

Test results will be back today.

Kelly splashed into the water at both beaches on Saturday at the reopening parties. He said yesterday he's not worried after his dip.

"I'm OK, my skin is still attached. No rashes, no itches, no nothing so there were no issues," he joked.

In terms of the beach being freshly opened then quickly closed, it was just a case of bad timing.

"Things happen that you can't control," he said.

Kelly added it was expected they would have to close the beach down from time to time because of weather conditions.

It was a slow day at Black Rock Beach in Point Pleasant Park yesterday.

Montrealer Ian Macintosh was surprised to find himself swarmed by local media on his quiet visit to the beach.

Macintosh and his young daughters Jessica and Janet are visiting family in Halifax and were the only people on the sand yesterday afternoon. Locals gave the beach a wide berth.

"(The girls) wanted to go to the beach, so we came here," a baffled Macintosh explained. "The lifeguard did inform that the beach is closed, so they just stayed on the sand."

Big Pond's Rita MacNeil a national threat?

DEAN LISK dean.lisk@metronews.ca

The RCMP may have thought of her as someone to be watched, but Rita MacNeil didn't think of herself as a threat.

It was revealed yesterday the singer from Big Pond, Cape Breton, was among the women the force kept an eye on while monitoring feminist rallies and the women's movement in the 1970s.

"It's strange. All I did was sing my songs. That was it. That was my part," MacNeil said.

"I am sure if I was under surveillance it had to be all of us under surveillance. I can only say I don't know why."

The Juno winner found out only recently the Mounties had compiled information on her time spent with the Toronto Women's Caucus.

"I meet some of those ladies today after my shows in different parts of this country and they all have grey hair like me now. We just talk about the time we had and the interesting moments it brought to our lives — I didn't know it would bring in the RCMP as well."

MacNeil said she got involved after being reluctantly brought to a meeting by a friend. The more she learned, the more interested she became — and eventually began writing songs about the movement.

"I find it strange why it made such a big splash."

MacNeil said she doesn't take the news seriously enough to pursue any action, but might check out what else the RCMP gathered on her.

"I might learn a few things I didn't know about. God knows, I might have a split personality," she added. "I should be under surveillance now because I just did a children's CD, and they should be watching those Big Pond concerts — that's all I can tell you."

Urban extension

Council approves noise exemption for country concert

LINDSAY JONES

lindsay.jones@metronews.ca

Keith Urban got the go-ahead to rock out later than is normally allowed at the upcoming concert on the Common.

Halifax regional council made an exemption in its noise bylaw for the Aug. 30 Keith Urban Country Rocks 2008 concert, as it did for The Rolling Stones two years ago.

The concert is expected to run from noon to 11 p.m. — about four hours longer than the permitted time. The sound will be directed from the east side of the north Common toward Robie Street.

Concert lineup

- Who's playing at the Keith Urban Country Rocks concert:
- Keith Urban
- Charlie Major
- Johnny Reid
- Aaron Pritchett
- Gretchen Wilson
- Jimmy Rankin
- Great Big Sea
- Mark Cameron

The promoters are now also permitted to dismantle equipment until 3 a.m.

Normally, concert-related noise is limited to 7 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. on weekdays, 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturdays, and 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Sundays.

The promoters also got permission to work beyond those hours in case of delays such as "weather or unforeseen circumstances."

Jill Ceccolini, who lives on North Park Street across the street from the concert site, told council the dismantling of The Rolling Stones set made it difficult for her and her neighbours to function normally.

"It was very difficult to go to work on Monday morning, having been up listening to 20 to 30 diesel trucks going back and forth with a beep, beep, beep," she said.

To promoter Harold MacKay, who was in attendance, Ceccolini said: "We're awake while things are being torn down and we have jobs to do, too, and families to support."

MacKay, president of Power Promotional Events, said the set is three-quarters the size of The Rolling Stones' and will require "a lot less equipment."

MacKay promised to minimize the noise as much as possible and said he expects to only violate noise bylaws after the show.

Work on the north Common will start on Aug. 25 and wrap up on Sept. 2.

Mixed reaction for $419-million surplus

JON TATTRIE

for Metro Halifax

Rodney MacDonald's government announced a $419-million surplus yesterday, but critics said it was a one-off lucky break and the public accounts show the province is in dire financial straits.

"This is our largest surplus since we first balanced the budget in 2002," said Finance Minister Michael Baker, "and we're confident it is Nova Scotia's largest surplus ever."

The surplus was $301 million more than budgeted — $234.4 million was from the Crown share adjustment payment, the deal that replaced the Atlantic Accord. Baker said $242 million would be put on the province's $12.1-billion debt.

Graham Steele, NDP finance critic, said it showed "short-term thinking" by the government.

"Long-term thinking would have been reducing the debt as quickly as possible, particularly with one-time payments like the Crown share," the Halifax-Fairview MLA said. "The money saved on the debt is available to Nova Scotians forever.

"The more desperate (the government) gets, the more money it wants to spend," he added. "It shows the finances of the province continue to run on a razor's edge."

Diana Whalen of the Liberals called the surplus "plain good luck." She said it should automatically go to the debt.

"Right now, it's open to the whims of government. This government chose to spend $75 million one way this year, and next year's payments could be put somewhere else."

The Halifax-Clayton Park MLA warned hard days are ahead if oil prices continue to rise.

"I don't feel that Nova Scotians should have a sense of confidence in this government," she said.

The $385 million spent in unplanned "appropriations," which doesn't need approval from the legislature, is a problem that "continues not to creep, but to leap forward."

"It's the whims of a government deciding to blow money when it comes their way," Whalen said.

Alexa, er, Alexis seeks NDP nod

JENNIFER TAPLIN
jennifer.taplin@metronews.ca

Alexis MacDonald might get a few extra votes in the Halifax riding just on name recognition alone.

Her name is so close to current NDP MP Alexa McDonough, that they've been mistaken before.

"People joke that they'll come to the ballot and say, 'Isn't she retired?' and just check it anyway. I just laugh."

Alexis MacDonald

— I have more faith in the voters than that."

Yesterday, MacDonald announced she'll seek the nomination as the NDP candidate for the federal Halifax riding. It's the same one McDonough, who's retiring, has held for more than 10 years.

"I am ready and eager to earn the trust of the people of Halifax," MacDonald told a crowd of about 150 people at Pier 21 yesterday.

MacDonald has never been elected outside a university student government, but she's tried twice.

In 2004 and 2006, she ran against Defence Minister Peter MacKay in Central Nova. The first time she doubled the NDP vote for the riding. The second time she came within eight per cent of MacKay, getting 33 per cent of the popular vote.

MacDonald said if she wins the nomination in the fall, it will be a different battle for the Halifax riding.

"In Central Nova, it's been nothing but conservatives for eons," she said in an interview after the announcement. "In Halifax there's a lot of clear interest for the NDP."

MacDonald grew up in Summerside, P.E.I., but she now lives on Robie Street in Halifax where she's finishing a masters degree at Dalhousie University.

Greyhound Canada is pulling an ad campaign related to "bus rage" after last week's violent stabbing and beheading onboard a Greyhound bus that was bound for Winnipeg from Edmonton.

The 2007 campaign features a slogan that reads, "There's a reason you've never heard of bus rage."

Abby Wambaugh, a spokeswoman with Greyhound Canada, says the campaign was supposed to expire before the attack, but there were some ads "lingering out there."

But far to the northwest, questions about dissent and China's human rights record refused to go away, after suspected Islamist sep-

Riot police flooded the streets in the old Silk Road city of Kashgar and stopped cars. Exiled dissident groups said many local Muslims had been rounded up, and some beaten. Japan protested after police also beat up two of its journalists there.

The government and Olympics chiefs shrugged off the attack, assuring

Jays wisely turned down Bay deal

These would have been Bay Days for the Blue Jays had the club's decision-makers been willing to relinquish their top two prospects last week.

Front-office sources with the Pittsburgh Pirates told Metro yesterday that, before MLB's July 31 trade deadline, they made a two-for-one proposal in which they would have dealt Canadian all-star Jason Bay to Toronto for minor-leaguers Travis Snider and Brett Cecil.

The Jays mulled it over and declined. Snider is a power-hitting outfielder/first baseman. Cecil is a left-handed pitcher. Baseball America ranks the two as the Jays' most promising minor-leaguers.

Ramirez jerseys fly off the shelves

• Fans at Dodger Stadium purchased more than $125,000-worth of Manny Ramirez swag in the slugger's first two games with Los Angeles. Ramirez was traded from the Boston Red Sox, where he became unpopular, as part of a three-way deal last week.

Bay, a B.C. native, wound up in the Boston Red Sox' outfield as part of a three-way deal that sent the Pirates prospects and the Los Angeles Dodgers all-star outfielder Manny Ramirez.

Bay has excelled with Boston so far. He entered last night with six runs and a .315 average in 16 at-bats.

• Not that Ramirez has been slouching in L.A. He entered last night with a .615 average and five runs batted in after 13 at-bats. And I'm sensing an all-L.A. World Series in October — the Dodgers and the Angels.

• The Stampeders and their fans are still fuming about their one-point loss to the Roughriders in Calgary Saturday night, partly because the officials mistakenly ejected line-backer Jojuan Armour after the game's second defensive snap and partly because some Saskatchewan fans in attendance refused to abide by the moment of silence devoted to ex-CFLer Leif Pettersen.

But it's the undefeated Riders who have filed an official complaint against Calgary, demanding league executives review what they considered an illegal, horse-collar tackle by the Stamps' Brandon Browner on the Riders' Carl Berman.

Should be an interesting rematch in Regina tomorrow, with Armour vowing that Rider running back Wes Cates won't come close to the 139 yards he gained last week.

• The Beijing Olympics will enable a Canadian website to become the world's first social networking company to make measurable income for sponsors.

"Online companies have long been trying to prove to sponsors that they can make money," said Shawn Saraga, president of www.freemyteam.com, the all-sports version of Facebook, "but we'll actually be proving it once and for all, without doubt."

The slowdown: Users can sign on at freemyteam.com, enter a code and collect $10 off at a Shoeless Joe's restaurant.

"Watch the Olympics there and cheer on our athletes," Saraga said. "It's a win-win. Shoeless Joe's makes money and our users save money."

Blue Jays rally late to top A's

BLUE JAYS 6 ATHLETICS 1

It was déjà vu for B.C.'s Scott Richmond in his second major-league start.

Once again, the Blue Jays rookie starter allowed three runs in just under six innings of work. Once more, he dribbled out hits, but didn't concede any big innings. Once again, he got a standing ovation from the crowd as he left.

But this time there was no tip of the cap. After a week in the big leagues, Richmond has loftier goals than just surviving.

It wasn't to be a first major-league win. When he left, the Jays trailed by one. But a stirring ninth-inning rally by the Toronto offence at least spared Richmond the loss.

Entering the final frame, the Jays had managed only four hits against the Oakland staff.

Alex Rios kicked things off with a leadoff single. With one out, Rod Barajas' double to the wall in left-centre tied the game at 3-3. Adam Lind, who already had an RBI triple to his credit, was intentionally walked by Oakland closer Huston Street. Scott Rolen's soft groundout advanced the runners to second and third.

Mench got the plaudits, but the game was saved in the top of the eighth. In that frame, shortstop John McDonald robbed Oakland of vital insurance runs on what may have been the best defensive play by a Jay this year.

The result will surely hearten Richmond, who has twice pitched well enough to win since first arriving here only a few days ago.

Ball players ready to shine

City hosting midget baseball championship

PAUL MCLEOD

paul.mcleod@metronews.ca

There's been an explosion of Canadian baseball stars to hit the major leagues in recent years.

From all-star hitters Justin Morneau, Jason Bay and Russell Martin, to ace pitchers like Erik Bedard, Rich Harden and Ryan Dempster, talent keeps streaming down from the Great White North.

Fans in Halifax may be watching future Major League stars this week at the Baseball Canada Midget Championship. Many of the top 16 to 18-year-olds from across the country will be coming to play for their home provinces.

"Many of the players will be draft eligible next year, so there will be major league and college scouts watching the tournament," said Brad Lawlor, executive director of Baseball Nova Scotia.

Two top pitching prospects on display happen to be from Nova Scotia. Brandon Petite will pitch Thursday's opening game for Halifax — for being the host the city gets to field its own team apart from Nova Scotia — while Cole Harbour native Shain Beaudreau will pitch for Nova Scotia.

"I'm pretty confident. The Halifax team seems to be a good bunch of guys, talented," said Petite, who attends the Vauxhall Academy of Baseball in Alberta throughout the year.

"I'm preparing the same way I do any other baseball game: just go out there and throw the ball."

Petite tosses a fastball that sits in the high 80's, mixed with a good curve and a changeup he uses for an out pitch.

Lawlor said both Petite and Cole Harbour's Beaudreau are top prospects.

"Shain's a great baseball player. He's a fantastic pitcher. Last year at the national-he threw a no-hitter, which doesn't happen often," said Lawlor of Beaudreau.

The tournament's opening ceremony is today, while games run from Thursday to Sunday.

Some provinces, like P.E.I., Manitoba and Newfoundland and Labrador are sending the all-star teams they'll be sending to the Canada Games. Others are sending club teams with some pickups from elsewhere in the province.

Brandon Petite will pitch for Halifax when they open the Baseball Canada Midget Championship in HRM this week.

Teen WOWS racing fans

PAT HEALEY
for Metro Halifax

SHUBENACADIE Cody Matechuk is hoping he learned enough to be ahead of his competition in the SV650 Cup class as riders on the Parts Canada National Superbike championship ride into Atlantic Motorsport Park in Shubenacadie.

The 14-year-old Matechuk is the youngest rider on the seven-round tour and wowed fans and racers alike in a warmup/testing session during Atlantic Roadracing League's recent doubleheader posting top times for an SV class motorcycle of 1:12s with stunning finishes of fourth, third and fifth against riders double his age and who have raced all their lives at AMP, while on a smaller SV650 engine. Before the July 26-27 ARL event, Matechuk had never seen nor raced at AMP.

AMP's unique design and layout consisting of 11-turns and twisty corners 4-6 and nine-10 and 11, which was co-founded, built and paid for by Jack Canfield of Oakfield and five others, received a ringing endorsement from Matechuk, second in the SV650 Cup standings.

"It's a fun track to race on," the Calgarian, who is related to pro rider Clint McBain, said.

"It has an awesome layout. I like it."

Matechuk, who sits second in the SV650 Cup standings behind the leader by 20 points, said fans are in for great races at one of the best tracks on the circuit.

"It's going to be a great experience with a party-like atmosphere," he added. "It'll be a good time with some great racing too."

Matechuk, who admits to a love for East Coast lobster, said his main goal coming to AMP was to learn a track he had never been too. He added he'll have plenty of time for normal male teenager stuff in the off-season.

"It gives me an advantage by being here learning the quirks and secrets of the track," he said. "It helps me learn."

Olympic torch arrives

The Olympic torch arrived in China's capital yesterday after a jubilant reception in the quake-ravaged southwest.

"This is the pride of the Chinese people," worker Xu Min said amid cheering crowds watching the flame in Chengdu, capital of quake-hit Sichuan province where 70,000 people died in May.

But far to the northwest, questions about dissent and China's human rights record refused to go away, after suspected Islamist separatists killed 16 policemen on Monday in what a senior local Communist Party official called a "terrorist attack."

The government and Olympics chiefs shrugged off the attack, assuring 10,500 athletes from 205 countries they would be safe. The International Olympic Committee also tried to reassure visitors and athletes that the smog would not pose major health problems.

But not everyone was convinced. Members of the U.S. cycling squad arrived at Beijing's new airport terminal yesterday wearing respiratory masks. The IOC's medical chief said the masks were unnecessary, and the U.S. Olympic Committee urged the Chinese not to take offence.

"It was in no way intended to be disrespectful," said spokesman Darryl Seibel.

High hopes for kayaker

Adam van Koeverden expected to medal in K-1 500 and 1,000 metres

MARTY YORK
Metro Canada

If you're Canadian, and you'd like to see your country capture a gold medal at the Olympic Games in Beijing this month, you ought to focus your attention on the man with the six-syllable name: Adam van Koeverden.

He's a kayaker from Oakville, Ont. And he's easily your best bet.

"The guy is definitely the stud of the Canadian Olympic team," says The Toronto Star's Olympic expert, Randy Starkman. "No one's got a track record like him going into the Games — Olympic champion, world champion, winner of five of six World Cups this season, newly minted record holder. This guy thrives under pressure. He's a favourite for the podium in both the K-1 500 and 1,000 metres."

Kayaker Adam van Koeverden, 26, was recently named as Canada's flag-bearer.

Van Koeverden also was named Canada's flag-bearer for the opening ceremonies in Beijing.

And unlike other athletes selected in the past as Canada's flag-bearer, van Koeverden isn't bristling or suggesting the notion of carrying his country's colours could be detrimental to his success. He's actually embracing the opportunity.

"It's a great honour," he said. "I just hope I don't let anybody down."

He hasn't done much letting down in recent years. He won the gold medal in the men's K-1 500 metres at the 2004 Olympics in Athens. And he believes that, at 26, he's in even better physical condition now. And he also thinks he knows what to expect from his competition.

No Canadian in any sport has had more success than van Koeverden heading toward the Beijing Games.

He's won five of six World Cup races this summer — he won a bronze in the other — and all the events had him competing against the world's top kayakers. He raised his career total to 21 victories. Fact is, he's never been beaten in the 500-metre competition.

"That means people will be formulating their racing and training plans in an effort to beat me," van Koeverden acknowledged, "but I'm cool with that. I think it's wonderful to be that guy...

"I recognize there's a lot of work I need to do. I need to get better at certain things."

Adam van Koeverden

"At the same time, I recognize there's a lot of work I need to do. I need to get better at certain things. I'm trying to improve."

That he has reached this point is remarkable in itself. By his own admission, he is not a natural athlete. It was only because he couldn't master any team sport that he started kayaking at age 13.

"I can't really dribble a basketball or kick a soccer ball," he said. "I'd be lying if I said I was a natural athlete. I have good pain tolerance and my endurance is good. I'm a good runner. But I used to feel weird in gym class because I wasn't good at any team sports, and I felt inferior to the kids who were."

So he turned to kayaking, where he clearly gives Canada its best gold-medal hope in Beijing.

Vancouver learning from China

From the laptop locks for reporters at the main press centre to the bus schedules and marketing schemes, Vancouver 2010 chief John Furlong is leaving nothing to chance. This is Vancouver's last opportunity to watch how the Olympics are done before the curtain comes down on the Beijing opera and the spotlight turns to British Columbia.

Furlong and 37 others from the Vancouver Organizing Committee are patrolling every nook and cranny of Beijing, learning everything they possibly can about the last Olympics that will be held prior to the Winter Games of 2010.

"Jacques Rogge (the IOC president) was in Vancouver a while back and he told us, 'The weight will fall very swiftly on your shoulders. Every minute, every day, every word you say will be written about, analyzed and editorialized. Just like that."

Furlong said facilities for the media are top of his mind.

"This is how the rest of the world comes face to face with the Olympics," he said. "The press centre and the broadcast centres are very important to us."

Furlong has noted the issues with fraudulent ticket sales in Australia as tickets for Vancouver will start being sold Oct. 3. He also expects to hear questions from IOC about the recent landslide that closed the highway between Vancouver and Whistler.

Furlong said there were considerably more Vancouver organizers in Turin for the Winter Games because there was more to learn. But it still will cost $600,000 to have 2010 officials stationed in China for the Summer Games, which start Friday.

Almost all the venues that will be used for the Vancouver-Whistler Games, including the new speed-skating oval in Richmond, are finished. Organizers want everything ready as early as they can so all the venues will be fully tested, and so Canadian athletes can start learning the nuances of the various facilities to aid Canada's quest to finish first in the medal standings come 2010.

Asked if he's scared about following what everyone so far thinks is the best organized Games they've seen, Furlong said he's relying on the character of Canadians to make a big impression come February 2010.

"We have to be unique and special and spectaclar in our own way," he said.

As much as he's impressed with the park at the north end of the Olympic Green in north Beijing — "it's three times the size of Stanley Park, with lakes and streams and rare trees; it's magnificent" — and with the sparkling venues, Furlong is anxious to see how the Chinese react if and when something goes wrong. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Acura sticks to roots

TSX adds more appeal without losing its athletic tradition

BILL MCLAUCHLAN
for Metro Canada

While the 2009 version of Acura's TSX offers a lot more room, comfort, features and technology than before, it has managed to stay true to its predecessor's image of a light, nimble and athletic sport sedan.

The design looks more evolutionary than revolutionary. A wider, bolder stance certainly gives it a sportier flavour but it also sits on a longer 2705 mm wheelbase (a 35 mm stretch over the outgoing model).

Overall, its body is slightly longer than before and wider too — all of which translates into a generous driver-oriented interior with more hip room and shoulder space.

The new look is dominated up front by a chiselled 'signature' grille, sharp elongated headlamps and bold fender flares.

The overall shape is clean and crisp, with strong character lines helping to shape the side surfaces.

But what is really seen in the new look is a clue to Acura's future styling direction for its sedans.

A lighter, stiffer body, coupled with revisions to the front and rear suspension, brings a noticeable increase in agility, along with a flatter, more controlled ride, improved high-speed stability and reduced road noise.

The 201 horsepower, 2.4-litre four-cylinder engine brings improved perform-

The manual is more fun, naturally, but the automatic is well suited to the engine's traits too.

For those with top-end tastes, the $39,000 TSX Technology Package adds a 10-speaker surround sound system with DVD-audio and also includes a satellite nav system with bilingual voice recognition and a rearview back-up camera.

There's no doubt the new TSX comes with lots of added appeal — enough to satisfy its loyal followers and tempt those who before might not have considered it.

Driving around bikes

Rising fuel costs have encouraged soaring cycle use — so we are seeing bicyclists on the roads with many different levels of experience.

This can be a problem for drivers; we need to take extra care to judge their speed — as well as the road and weather conditions — from the new biker's point of view.

Remember too that some bike riders, particularly younger ones, have never driven a car, and so don't recognize the problems that they can cause car drivers. In an accident involving a car and a cyclist, whoever is to blame the cyclist will always be the more vulnerable to a serious injury.

Sharing the road

To help prevent potential conflict here are a few pointers to bear in mind:

- Bike riders don't have steel armour round them like drivers do. Passing them at speed within a foot of their elbow may feel perfectly safe from where you are, but it is very disconcerting when you are the cyclist.
- In traffic, make sure you don't cut off a biker who is about to pass you on the inside. Don't try to cut across a cyclist when you need to turn right at an intersection. Wait behind the cyclist until the he/she has either turned right or passed the cross street.
- Park with care and don't open any door until you're sure there is no cyclist coming up on either side.

In J.D. Power and Associates 2008 Automotive Performance, Execution and Layout (APEAL) Study, the Focus raised its score over last year by 88 index points — the biggest improvement in the industry.

The compact Focus performed better than the segment average in every category, scoring especially well in the areas of fuel economy, audio/entertainment, interior and exterior styling.

Its appeal to buyers bears out in the marketplace: Focus retail sales in the U.S. are up 64 per cent year-to-date (five per cent in Canada) while industry-wide retail sales of small cars are up 10 per cent.

In response, Ford is increasing Focus production at its assembly plant in Wayne, Mich., where a third shift will be added to the plant's body and paint shops in September.

According to a survey by the National Business Travelers' Association, more than two-thirds of Canadian business travellers paid more for hotel stays in 2007 than in the previous year, while 40 per cent experienced car rental rate increases. CALGARY.BBB.ORG

Exploring Brazil's Marvellous City

LIA HAMA
Metro World News

Tom Jobim and Vinicius de Moraes' 'Girl from Ipanema' is probably still the most famous Brazilian song in the world, and the first thing that comes to mind when you are strolling down the beach-front of Rio de Janeiro.

But the city that gave birth to bossa nova and samba has many other musical styles to offer. As well as local pop-rock, hip hop and electronic music and the distinctive favela funk that originates from the shanty towns of Rio, there are many fusions of the different styles including samba-rock, electro-samba and bossa-jazz.

You can also hear other Brazilian regional sounds in Rio, including forró, traditional fast-paced music from North East, and maracatu, a rhythm originally from the state of Pernambuco.

Music is an important part of daily life for cariocas — Rio's inhabitants — and it can be heard everywhere: in the botecos (neighbourhood bars) of Santa Teresa, the dance halls of Lapa, the bars around Lagoa, and in open-air concerts in Copacabana beach, Marina da Glória and Sugar Loaf.

The seductive sounds of what Brazilians call the Cidade Maravilhosa, or Marvellous City, offer the perfect soundtrack for a visit to this vibrant city. Follow our guide and you'll know where to go to hear Gafieira Estudantina in Rio de Janeiro holds 1,500 people and is open for dancing all night long.

the best music in town.

Samba

Where to go: Lapa and Santa Teresa

Traditional samba saw a rebirth in the 1990s in Rio with the opening of new bars in Lapa, the historical district that's home to the famous aqueduct, Arcos da Lapa. A rising star intimately linked to this renaissance is Teresa Cristina and Grupo Semente, who perform in the area. Two good places to see classic artists and new talent in Lapa are Carioca da Gema (Rua Mem de Sá, 79, Lapa, barcariocadagema.com.br) and Democráticus (Rua do Riachuelo, 91, Lapa). In Santa Teresa, a very famous boteco and restaurant with samba demonstrations is Sobrenatural. (Av. Almirante Alexandrino, 432, Santa Teresa).

MPB, bossa nova and rock

Where to go: Circo Voador, Verão da Urca, Oi Noites Cariocas

A good setting to see MPB (Música Popular Brasileira, or Brazilian Popular Music) and local rock live concerts is Circo Voador (or Flying Circus), an outdoor concert venue on Rua dos Arcos, Lapa (circovoador.com.br). In summer, the best venue is Verão no Morro, which happens on the mountain-top of Sugar Loaf complex, with a fabulous view of the city (Avenida Pasteur, 520, Praia Vermelha, Urca, morrodaurca.com).

Rock and MPB concerts there attract a well-dressed crowd from Zona Sul (the wealthy area of Rio). The popular Oi Noites Cariocas parties were held there until last year when they moved to Pier Mauá (Rua Rodrigues Alves, 10, Centro, oiinoitescariocas.oi.com.br).

Funk

Where to go: Favelas

Born in the favelas, Rio's bass-heavy funk music is now part of the city's mainstream, attracting wealthy people as well as the favelas' communities. A famous baile (dance or ball) funk, which attracts lots of tourists, is Castelo das Pedras, in Jacarepaguá. (Estrada de Jacarepaguá, 3600, Rio das Pedras, castelodaspedras.com.br).

Gafieira

Where to go: Lapa

Rio's old-school-style dance halls, the gafieiras, were originally established in the 1920s for the urban working class but nowadays attract a young trendy crowd from Zona Sul as well as artists, musicians and dancers. The most famous one is Gafieira Estudantina, which opened in 1932, holds 1,500 people and is open for dancing all night long. (Praça Tiradentes, 79, Centro).

Forró

Where to go: Feira de São Cristóvão

At this traditional fair you can find a bit of the Brazilian Northeast in Rio. About 700 tents offer typical food, handicrafts, music, dance and poetry from this part of the country. Bands playing forró (traditional fast-paced music) perform in the central square alongside impressive rodas de capoeira, circles in which performers show off their skills in capoeira, an Afro-Brazilian mix of martial art and dance. (Campo de São Cristóvão, São Cristóvão)

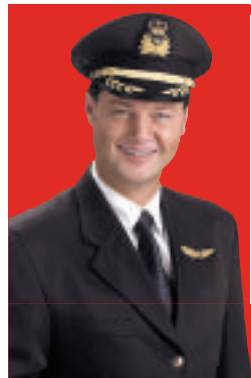

Music stores

Modern Sound

One of the most famous music stores in Brazil, this shop opened in 1966 in the heart of the Copacabana neighbourhood and has samba, bossa nova, hip hop and dozens of other categories of Brazilian music. The café in the store has live jazz. (Rua Barata Ribeiro, 502, Copacabana; modernsound.com.br).

Toca do Vinicius

A shop named after celebrated songwriter Vinicius de Moraes specializing in CDs and books of bossa nova. Upstairs, a museum shows original handwritten pieces, and photos. (Rua Vinicius de Moraes, 129, Ipanema; tocadovini-cius.com.br).

Unearthing sapphires in Sri Lanka

TheTravelJunkie

thetraveljunkie.ca

JULIA DIMON FOR METRO CANADA

It's a country of coastlines, religious festivals and tea plantations. Formerly Ceylon, Sri Lanka is home to some 21 million people who rock a lion on their national flag, love spicy curry, and — despite the huge popularity of cricket — boast volleyball as their national sport.

Day two of my weeklong journey finds me travelling from the urban sprawl of Colombo to the green rice paddies of the Sri Lankan countryside. From the comfort of an air-conditioned bus, I watch local life speed past.

Children skip to school in crisp, white uniforms. Women work among vines in sugarcane plantations.

Men dig around in the muck, searching for unpolished gemstones. In the Ratnapura region, there are plenty of mining pits, hand-dug by teams of workers on the hunt for precious stones.

Sri Lanka is known as "the island of gems." It has a long history of gem mining and trading, dating back some 2,000 years.

"This is one of the best places in the world to buy sapphires," my guide tells me. Who knew? I've heard of Colombia's emeralds and the Philippines' pearls, but I had no idea this tiny South Asian country was big on the jewellery scene.

In the Ratnapura region, there are plenty of mining pits like this one, hand-dug by teams of workers on the hunt for precious stones.

I ask if we can stop to check out the mines. I hop out of the bus and descend upon the crew of nine, cameras and questions blazing.

Teeth stained red from betelnut (a popular chewing-tobacco-like stimulant), they kindly take me through the gem-mining, or "gemming" process.

With rudimentary machines that sputter and smoke, they dredge for deposits. As with panning for gold, they take a rattan basket and swirl it around, trying to extract the valuable gems from the clay, gravel and sand. This job places them into waist-high water, and knee-deep mud as thick as cement.

I make one false step and sink into soil that swallows my flip-flop whole. Clearly this is a messy job, and a dangerous one at that.

As I survey the workers, many look injured — one has a cut over his eye, another a bloody bandage covering his big toe.

Despite these frequent on-the-job injuries, there is no disability or unemployment insurance. If the crew members get hurt, they're on their own.

Though they may work all day, they only get paid if they find something worth selling. The investor takes 50 per cent of the sales and the workers split the rest amongst themselves.

Worried that the workers might swallow the gem (to cash in for themselves), the investor is the only one allowed to sort through the finds of the day. Huddled around the boss, the team watches eagerly as he picks at the gravel by hand. No sapphires this time around, only a few mature semi-precious stones that have little resale value.

I have a new appreciation for sapphires, and, more importantly, for the individuals who toil to find them. I'm truly amazed at the blood, sweat and time it takes to get the gem out of the ground and on its way to your jewelry case.

Bandmates revel in local connection ahead of Sunday gig

DEAN LISK

Their bandmate isn't from Halifax, but for vocalist Alex Norman and the rest of illScarlett, bassist John Doherty is a great guide to the city.

"He is a huge Halifax fan, and he loves going there," Norman said about Doherty, who is the son of Halifax born Denny Doherty. The musician, who died in 2007, was a member of the Mamas & the Papas, and played the Harbour Master in the Theodore Tugboat series.

"He always feels a bit like he is home," Norman added about his bassist. "He has this innate sense of belonging, so it is good. We go down to the harbour and see Theodore — which is really funny."

"We were really excited, we found out just before we went on stage for a show in Toronto, and it was awesome. The news just keeps getting better and better," said Norman.

The band's good news includes tours across Europe and Canada, a Juno nomination and Much Music Video Award, and the release of its latest album, All Day With It. It was recorded in Los Angeles under the di-

Even with illScarlett's success, the guys still like going out to the merchandise table to meet fans, talk with them, and put a face to the screams they hear during their shows. It's important, Norman said, to give back.

"It's like that old proverb: If a tree falls in the forest and no one is there, does it make a sound?" Norman said. "If a band plays on stage and no one is there to hear it, do they actually make a sound? Are they actually a band?"

Uncool characters take cool turn in Express

Pineapple Express

Director: David Gordon Green
Stars: Seth Rogen, James Franco
Classification: 18A
Rating: ●●●●½

STEVE GOW
for Metro Canada

These days, there likely isn't a much more critic-proof movie than Pineapple Express. Not only is it produced by comedy-king Judd Apatow but it was co-written by and stars Hollywood's favorite pot-smoking court jester, Seth Rogen. Throw in a shoot 'em up and it's a trifecta of silliness that's guaranteed to attract young audiences.

A simple story, Express is a Midnight Run-type caper about a dope-smoking process server named Dale (Rogen) who goes on the lam with his hapless drug dealer (James Franco) after witnessing a murder involving a dirty cop and a drug lord. Together, the two stoners run, hide and get wasted becoming unlikely pals amidst the chaotic action.

And there is a fair amount of action. Rogen and co-writer Evan Goldberg were heavily inspired by such buddy/action fare as Lethal Weapon and it shows. Sure, it's a hollow story and the pacing is uneven, but this comedy still works for its unique ability to craft extremely likeable characters that aren't usually portrayed likeable in the movies. Just as they did with their script for Superbad, they do it again here.

Franco is surprisingly enjoyable as the Spicoliinspired burnout Saul while Danny McBride (Hot Rod) is sure to be crowned this summer's McLovin, stealing scenes as an indestructible mid-level dealer with shaved armpits. Don't ask.

As with Superbad, Apatow and Rogen have created an impossibly hip comedy about impossibly uncool characters. Further, they achieved an even more incredible feat: They resurrected Huey Lewis to pen an impossibly cool theme song. Who knew he still had it in him?

Apparently, they did.

The cult of friendship

Groups of friends can feel like sisterhood, author says

JIM REYNO
Metro Canada

Carmen, Tibby, Bridget, Lena — and you. You don't have to squeeze into the jeans to be part of the Sisterhood.

"The idea of there being four equally weighted protagonists, it makes you feel like you're part of something," Ann Brashares said about the appeal of her bestselling teen series The Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants. "You're almost part of this group, this sisterhood. It feels communal and welcoming, this governing spirit of a very deep and unconditional friendship."

Brashares, promoting the movie Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants 2, believes in bonds. It seems sisters don't have to do it for themselves.

"I think there's always the fantasy of a really great, sustaining friendship. And I've tried to depict that — realistically," Brashares said. "I believe those friendships really do exist. I don't think it's fantasy."

"This is the kind of friendship people want, where it's the kind of friends who are happy when you're happy, and sad when you're sad."

The second Sisterhood movie, which opens today, draws from the final three books in the series.

"I feel like it was a difficult job to pull that together, and that they really managed to do it," Brashares said about Pants 2. "I think there are some insights and connections that aren't necessarily in the books. But that was interesting to me."

There may not be another

Sisterhood movie, but the story lives on. In January, 3 Willows: The Sisterhood Grows is scheduled to hit the shelves. In the book, Brashares continues her exploration of women maintaining friendships while growing into separate, individual lives.

But the exploration will be in a familiar context.

"It takes place in the same world as the Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants books, but there are new characters," Brashares said about 3 Willows. "There are many, many things that are familiar, even little cameos of old characters. They grew up in the same town, and they are starting the same high school where the Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants girls went. And they know of them."

Brashares, who published her first adult novel last year, has no problem revisiting the Sisterhood — as long as it's on her terms.

"I don't want to feel like I have to keep going back to the same thing because that's what people want from me," she said. "I want to be able to continue to grow as a writer, to do new things, to try new things."

Ann Brashares is the author of the Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants series.

DiCaprio in talks to play Vladimir Lenin

MOVIES

Leonardo DiCaprio is reportedly in talks to play Russian revolutionary Vladimir Lenin in a new movie, imdb.com reports.

DiCaprio

The actor is said to be in negotiations to take on the leading role in forthcoming film Lenin's Brain, according to British newspaper The Sun. Alexander Der Borodiansky will direct, and he insists DiCaprio is perfect for the part because of his striking physical resemblance to the communist politician, who died in 1924.

Big cheer for Pants 2

JIM REYNO
Metro Canada

The Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants 2

Director: Sanaa Hamri

Stars: America Ferrera, Blake Lively, Amber Tamblyn, Alexis Bledel

Classification: PG-13

Rating: ●●●●

There's a telling, tense scene early in Sisterhood 2 where America Ferrera, Blake Lively, Amber Tamblyn and Alexis Bledel gather to renew the ritual of the traveling pants.

The pants (as you would know if you're familiar with the first movie or Ann Brashares's series of novels) miraculously fit all four friends. They pass them off to one another, and stay close at the same time. It's a common bond for the four unlikely but likeable friends as they take separate paths to adulthood.

But hang on — those jeans (and those friendships) appear to be fading fast. The ritual has become tiresome for three of them, and it looks like the BFFs might be DOA.

And so Sisterhood 2 explores how the foursome handle increasingly adult responsibilities in their ever-separating lives, all the while struggling to maintain their childhood friendships. There's a lot of life packed in to the four lives: a pregnancy scare, relationship issues, coping with death, family bonds, new love vs. old flame, a new career ... The stories of their lives are intercut, and Hamri generally does a good job of giving each story the right amount of room to push the plot along.

Sisterhood of the Traveling Pants 2 opens today.

At the end of the day, Sisterhood 2 is a big cheer — hooray for the friends as everything works out (of course). In reality, most of us do change and outgrow our childhood friendships. That catchup phone call, e-mail, lunch, or coffee date never comes. Sisterhood 2 gives us the chance to vicariously stay close to everyone we love.

The unreal facts of reality TV

THE REAL THING: "I did it because I needed the money," recalls Matt Kennedy Gould, who briefly lived in the uneasy glare of reality TV fame when he appeared on Joe Schmo, Spike TV's barely discernible parody of the genre.

"I lived with my parents. I had just dropped out of law school. I was a regular pot smoker. I didn't want to work."

For anyone who's wondered aloud where they find the sort of people who agree to appear on reality TV, now you know.

Entertainment Weekly has a reputation — eminently deserved — for being a bubbleheaded publicity organ, so you have to read their piece on reality TV has-beens like Gould looking back on their often-toxic efflorescence of fame as an inadvertent rebuttal to the most popular complaint directed at reality TV — that it's a stage-managed lie meant to dupe gullible viewers with the appearance of reality.

Well, yes, of course it is, but the EW piece blandly confirms that reality TV viewers are blithely aware of all of this, and that speculating on the machinations behind the scenes, while

"I went to college for criminal justice, forensics and ballistics, and you learn about interrogation methods where they deprive you of sleep and food to wear you down, and after the first few days I realized that's what they were doing. We were hungry and it would be hours before we ate, and people's emotions would get high."

Former Temptation Island contestant Genevieve Deitrick enjoying the ragged morality play happening on the surface, has made reality TV viewing an experience as complex in its way as relaxing into the high-gloss edginess of an HBO drama.

You can't help but smile knowingly when you read Genevieve Deitrick's account of her time spent on the second season of Temptation Island with her fiancé Tony Schmitt.

"The producers really didn't like me too much. I went to college for criminal justice, forensics and ballistics, and you learn about interrogation methods where they deprive you of sleep, deprive you of food to wear you down, and after the first few days I realized that's what they were doing."

"We were hungry and it would be hours before we ate, and people's emotions would get high."

Contestants might be deprived of food, but they never lack for drink, according to several of the onetime reality inmates.

"You got gourmet chefs, you got Jacuzzi's, you got all the alcohol you could want," recalls Billie Jeanne Houle, who appeared on Fox's Married By America.

Jennifer Braff, who did time on NBC's Age Of Love as one of the cougars competing for the affection of a younger man against a cohort of young things, recalls the show's reliance on social lubricants.

"You fill out your forms and tell a little about your personality."

"It said, 'What's your favorite drink?' And I said, 'I can get a little carried away with tequila.' Funny how tequila was always there."

Amanda Habrowski, who goes by the nickname "Ice" apparently, did a season on VH1's Flavor Of Love, and asked the unkind question "Who the hell could fall in love with Flavor Flav?"

She was in tears when she left the show, however, but explains that it wasn't about the rejection.

"We lived the good life out there. That's why I cried at the end. Everyone's like, 'You didn't even like him!' I'm like, 'I'm leaving a pretty mansion in California! I'm not going to be pampered anymore!'"

"That's why I was crying, man."

Supernatural
Fans knew Dean's (Jensen Ackles) days were numbered, but he wasn't supposed to go like this. In the gut-wrenching episode "Mystery Spot," Dean is fatally shot while he and Sam (Jared Padalecki) are investigating a man's disappearance. Sam's grief turns to surprise when he wakes up the next day to find his brother alive — but that's only because he's reliving the previous day, "Groundhog Day"-style, and seeing Dean die every day for weeks. 11 PM on SPACE

Catch-22
Alan Arkin stars as Captain John Yossarian, a bombardier in the U.S. Army Air Corps in the Second World War who takes his licks while learning that the act and bureaucracy of war don't make a lot of sense. 6:10 PM on PIX

CSI: NY
You don't have to be familiar with the online virtual world "Second Life" to enjoy this episode; in fact, you'll find a lot like Mac (Gary Sinise), who doesn't know "Second Life" but has to learn fast in order to track down the killer of two people who were seriously into it. Fortunately, he has Net-savvy Adam (A.J. Buckley) to help him navigate the unfamiliar territory. 8 PM on CJCH; 11 PM on CBS

Heather Graham is single again after splitting from boyfriend Charles Ferri. The actress, 38, and the club boss had been dating for two years. A source tells People magazine the relationship was "pretty serious." IMDB.COM

Oprah hauls $385 million

EARNINGS Oprah Winfrey earns a whopping $385 million US a year.

Simon Cowell banks $50 million.

David Letterman? $32 million!

They're among the stars who appear in TV Guide's annual star salary survey, based on information from TV industry insiders and published sources, us-magazine.com reports.

According to TV Guide, Charlie Sheen is the highest-paid comedy star on primetime television, with $825,000 per episode.

CSI's William Peterson — who is leaving the show this upcoming season — is the highest-paid actor in a prime-time drama, earning $600,000 per episode.

With

$400,000 an episode, Law & Order: SVU star Mariska Hargitay is the highest-paid actress in a drama.

Kyra Sedgwick takes home $275,000 per episode of TNT's The Closer, making her top-earning actress on a cable network drama.

Some stars make serious money without appearing on TV at all.

Family Guy creator Seth MacFarlane, who supplies the voice of lead character Peter Griffin, just signed a deal with Fox that will net him $100 million through 2012.

And The Simpsons cast — Dan Castellaneta, Julie Kavner, Nancy Cartwright, Yeardley Smith and Hank Azaria — each earn $400,000 per episode.

Sexy Eva ad axed

ADVERTISEMENT Actress Eva Mendes' saucy perfume advertisement for Calvin Klein has been boycotted by several U.S. TV networks, imdb.com reports.

Bosses at national broadcasting stations are refusing to air the commercial for the company's Secret Obsession fragrance, in which the nude star writhes seductively on a bed.

Tom Murry,

president of Calvin Klein Inc., tells the New York Daily News, "We believe the commercial is exceptional and hits the mark for Secret Obsession. We are anticipating a very successful global launch."

A censored clip is expected to be shown on U.S. cable networks after the 9 p.m. watershed, while the unedited version will air in full in other countries.

celebrity brief Olsen denies drug connection

DEATH Mary-Kate Olsen "had nothing whatsoever to do with the drugs found in Heath Ledger's home or his body, and she does not know where he obtained them," her attorney, Michael C. Miller, tells Us-magazine.com. The New York Post reported Monday that Olsen, 22, is refusing to talk to investigators about Ledger's death until she is granted immunity.

"This makes no sense at all..."

by Joe O'Neill

Anyone investigating Mary-Kate Olsen in the matter of Heath Ledger's death is playing a dangerous game. If you're as familiar as I am with the movies she made with her sister Ashley, such as It Takes Two, Our Lips Are Sealed, and New York Minute, you'll know she's an expert at switching places with her twin in order to flabbergast adults and get what she wants. It's probably the only skill she possesses, other than going up to 10 days without blinking, dressing like an alien overlord, and sharing her OxyContin, but I digress.

Once more, Angelina Jolie has displayed the sheer vastness of her compassion by brushing off claims that she and Brad Pitt conceived their new twins with the aid of fertility treatments. She knows the little people, like you and especially me, need to believe in the divine powers of our celebrities, including their ability to procreate. Also, we won't get through to breakfast tomorrow if robbed of our mental images of people far more attractive than us humping. I think the U.N. gives out commissions for that kind of service, and I nominate Angie.

You can't really blame Paris Hilton for turning down the six-day work week of the theatre in order to maintain her schedule of go to club, go to other club, go to other other club, make sex tape. Either way, the performance ends up being terrible.

Paris too busy for stage role

THEATRE Socialite Paris Hilton turned down the chance to take to the stage in London's West End, because the play didn't fit in with her schedule, imdb.com reports.

The hotel heiress was recently approached to take on the role of Roxie Hart in hit musical Chicago.

But Hilton turned down the part because it meant she would have to endure a gruelling six-day week.

"I was flattered," she said, "but with my schedule, there was no way I could fit it in."

No fertility help needed

FAMILY Actors Angelina Jolie and Brad Pitt are setting the record straight about their newborn babies, Knox and Vivienne, intouchweekly.com reports.

Jolie denies Us Weekly's recent report that she underwent fertility treatments.

"If they had been conceived though IVF, we would have been happy to discuss it," she tells People magazine about the twins, who were born on July 12. "But we have been fortunate never to have had fertility problems."

Shannon denies engagement with Dancing partner

RUMOURS Actress Shannon Elizabeth has laughed off reports she is engaged to her former Dancing With The Stars partner Derek Hough, imdb.com reports.

The couple met when the American Pie star was paired up with the dancer to compete in the 2008 series of the talent competition, in which they came in sixth place.

Star magazine reported last month that their relationship was going so well, Hough had proposed to Elizabeth but she turned him down.

But the 34-year-old claims there is no truth to the speculation, insisting they are happy as boyfriend and girlfriend.

"There's this whole weird rumour going around," People.com reports.

"One of them says that he proposed and I said no, and the other says he proposed and I said yes, and we're getting married. Neither one is true."

HOW TO PLAY SUDOKU:

The digits 1 through 9 will appear exactly once in each row, each column, and each zone. (A zone is an outlined 3x3 grid within the larger puzzle grid. There are nine of these zones in the puzzle.) Do not enter a digit into a box if it already appears elsewhere in the same 3x3 zone, or in the same row across the puzzle, or column down the puzzle.
